Art Unit: 3724

1. Claims 9 and 10 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR

1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected group, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 15 December 04.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-6 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yu '851, who shows a table saw with most of the recited limitations including;

First and second bearing means (31,33) having arcuate sliding paths,

A support seat (32) having first and second ends (321,322), a mount segment (at 323) and a seat segment (at 32),

A pivotable motor (39),

A blade shaft (seen in figure 4) having a mount end (left side) a shaft body (central portion) and a driven end (right side),

A saw blade (40),

A spindle (part of 34) having teeth (341) and being mounted on a post (38),

A coupler having a linkage (342) and a sleeve (343),

A height adjusting rod (371) having a threaded surface (372),

An inclination adjusting member (361).

Art Unit: 3724

Yu does not show his topside worktable, so it is not known if it is pivotable or not. Examiner takes Official Notice that it is well known for table saw tabletops to be pivotable. An example of such is the patent to Cook '544. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have made Yu's tabletop pivotable, as is well known and taught by Cook, in order to be able to access the inner machinery.

Yu does not show how he fastens the blade at a certain inclination. Examiner takes Official Notice that it is well known to employ a fastening member that screws into one end of the support seat, said fastening member including a head, washer and spring. An example of this is the patent to Chuang '242 (right hand side of figure 4). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have used such a well known fastening member (such as Chuang's) on Yu's table saw, in order to be able to fix the inclination of the blade.

In regards to claims 6 and 8, Yu's inclination adjusting member is not the type that has a screw hole in the mounting seat, bevel gears and an indicating unit. Examiner takes Official Notice that it is well known for inclination adjusting members to have a screw hole in the mounting seat, bevel gears and an indicating unit. An example of this is the patent to Chiang '002 (see figures 3 and 5). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have modified Yu by making the inclination adjusting member of the type that has a screw hole in the mounting seat and has bevel gears and an indicating unit, as is well known and taught by Chiang, in order to be able to access all controls from the front of the machine and to be able to accurately discern the angle of inclination.

Art Unit: 3724

4. Claim 7 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

5. Made of record but not relied upon are patents to Wang, Parks et al. and Garcia et al. showing pertinent table saws.

6. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Ken Peterson at 517-272-4512, on Monday-Thursday, 7AM-5PM.
